DISRAELI AND GLADSTONE IN DEBATE.

[From Justin McCarthy's Correspondence with the New York Mail.]

LONDON, February 10, 1872.—I was present the other night when Gladstone made his great bid for popularity by denouncing the American claim for "consequential damages." As the speech has pretty nearly set this country in a flame, I may ask a little of your space to describe the speech, the debate and the scene. The House was crowded to excess, for everybody knew that Disraeli would draw out the Government on the subject, and that Gladstone would say something strong.

DISRAELI.

Disraeli led off. His speech was immensely clever. It had a fine show of patriotism about it, and of unselfish readiness to support the Government for the sake of the country, while all the time it continued to throw the whole blame of everything on the Government, and especially on Gladstone. The manner of the speech was of course excusable. One must be well habituated to the House of Commons' style to endure most of its speakers, and Disraeli's mannerisms transcend those of anybody else. He talks in a sepulchral voice, something like that of an afflicted and lachrymose raven. A stranger might fancy that he was actually beginning to cry. He groans and croaks out his words, and seems to drag them up from the very pit of his stomach. He stammers and boggles and halts at irregular intervals in the middle of every sentence, and interjects that odious "aw, aw," which English speakers seem unable to get rid of. His gestures are angular, constrained and awkward. When he becomes vehement he is turgid; when he is solemn he outgroans the Rev. Mr. Stiggins. I have heard a few public speakers in various countries in my time, and I hereby record my former declaration that the manner of the Right Hon. Benjamin Disraeli is the most utterly detestable that has ever come under my notice. But for all that, his speech was very clever, ingenious and effective; and Disraeli is a perfect master of phrases. He never speaks without bequeathing some happy phrase, to be quoted again and again in and out of the House. He spoke as he always does, standing beside the table on which the mace lies, and on the other side of which sit the Ministers. When, leaning across the table as if he were about to lie down on it, and looking straight at Gladstone, he announced that he was prepared to support the Government, he conveyed, and, of course, meant to convey, the following impression: "I know that this is all your fault; I have personally the most utter contempt for you and all your colleagues; I could overwhelm you with shame, but, for the sake of the country I will actually subdue my feelings, and consent to endure you while this difficulty lasts."

GLADSTONE.

Mr. Gladstone was singularly mild, even humble, in his reply towards Disraeli. He put on the weak air of one who rather likes to be rebuked, and believes it to be for his spiritual good. There is a story told with great zest by one of Mr. Gladstone's own colleagues, to the effect that being one night in the members' gallery, and near that of the reporters, while Gladstone was declaiming in one of his saintly strains, he heard a reporter ejaculate, as if unconsciously, or as if he couldn't help it, the word "Peckniff!" For myself I believe Gladstone to be a perfectly sincere and high-minded man, but his saintly words of oratory are decidedly irritating. He was sweetly sanctified in his dealings with Disraeli, but he flamed up into anything but sanctity when he came to talk of your Alabama claims. It was really a splendid specimen of that ornate and gorgeous kind of eloquence which is so peculiar to Gladstone.

In the opening passage of the speech the House of Commons mannerism and tone were painfully apparent. The sing-song cadence and the oddly lachrymose strain like that of a certain kind of preacher, were unpleasant to hear. At one time I remember I hardly understood what Charles Dickens used to mean when he described the House of Commons tone as the worst of all affectations. Then I used to attend the debates so regularly that familiarity prevented me from observing the defects. Absence of some years from England has lately converted me into a sort of fresh and strange observer; and this hideous funeral tone impresses me beyond description. Why, when Sir Roundell Palmer last night was proposing the election of the new Speaker of the House, everybody might have thought he was a lugubrious Methodist preacher reading the burial service. To return, however, to Gladstone. He dropped the doleful tone as he warmed in his speech. Years, however, have told heavily on his voice. It is no longer the wonderful organ, sweet, strong, clear, like a clarion, that it used to be. All the finer notes have been worn away. He is sometimes husky, coarse and even harsh. But the closing passages of his review of the Alabama question were full of genuine power and impressiveness, and they took the House immensely. Probably you will think the style of them overwrought and extravagant. But this was not the effect upon the ears of those who listened—even of those who, like myself (and there are some such), regarded the speech as in the highest degree ill-timed and mischievous. Viewed as a mere piece of declamation, it was wonderfully artistic, for Mr. Gladstone managed with rare skill to convey into it a manner as of one who was honestly restraining and repressing his emotion—as of one whose ardor would have led him to utter defiance, but whose self-control enabled him to be content with a protest. Strange as it may seem to you, this was the effect produced. The speech was made for the galleries, for the press, for the public, to anticipate the Tories, to show that the honor of England and the British lion and the Union Jack and all the rest of the properties are safe in the hands of a Liberal Ministry.

ROMEO IN A RAGE.

Terrible Scene in a Menagaric—The Elephant Romeo Attacks His Keeper—An Exciting and Perilous Situation.

[From the Philadelphia Press, February 24.]

Out at Twenty-second and Bolton streets, yesterday, transpired another terrible combat with an infuriated beast, in which a human life was nearly sacrificed. At this place, as our readers know from the account in Wednesday's Press, are located the Winter quarters of Adam Forepaugh's menagerie, an establishment containing every variety of bird and beast.

ROMEO MAD.

Yesterday morning Mr. George Forepaugh, keeper of the celebrated elephant Romeo, who is known to be the most vicious animal ever publicly exhibited, and whose title among showmen is the "champion man-killer," entered the building as usual to attend to the wants of his huge pet. The brute was apparently in the best of moods, and Mr. Forepaugh apprehended no danger. However this fancied security, while peering through an aperture at the performance of some members of the troupe who were exercising in the ring attached to the building, Mr. Forepaugh was reminded of Romeo's presence and dangerous instincts, by suddenly finding himself encircled in the coils of

THE TRUNK

Of the animal. In an instant the unlucky man was hurled through the air with tremendous force. Fortunately he fell on a pile of blankets. But he was now in more imminent danger than ever—directly under the feet and completely in the power of the infuriated beast. A single tramp, one blow from the terrible trunk, and he was a dead man. In this perilous situation, with the weapon of the treacherous animal raised to deliver the fatal blow, relief came from Mr. Charles Forepaugh, who was in the rear part of the stable.

A COURAGEOUS MAN.

With rare presence of mind and unusual courage this man seized an immense pitchfork with which Romeo is occasionally tamed into submission, and dealt the mad monster thrust after thrust. Writhing with pain, the brute turned on his assailant, but his chains prevented him from reaching him. Howling with rage he essayed to deal the new comer a deadly blow, but alert and active, this gentleman continued his merciless thrusts until the flanks of the beast streamed with blood. All the time Mr. George Forepaugh was crawling further away from his position. He was painfully bruised and moved slowly and cautiously away, but finally succeeded in reaching the middle of the floor and a place of safety. Other assistance then came, and additional chains were thrown around the feet of Romeo, and he was made perfectly secure, but he continued to show signs of rage for some time, and his keeper says the fit may last on him for several days.

THE DEN OF THE ANIMAL.

Romeo is kept chained by the legs in a stable adjoining the department appropriated to the cages that contain the lions, tigers, panthers, etc., and in one portion of this stable the performing horses have their stalls. This stable is divided from what is called the performing or practice ring by a wooden partition, and the elephant is confined in a corner or angle of the stable in such a manner that he faces the partition, that separates the ring from the stable.

ROMEO'S RECORD.

The Press has more than once recounted the bloody deeds of this animal when incensed. Not a year ago, in a country village in Ohio, he killed a man and destroyed a house or two. A few years back, when the establishment at Tenth and Callowhill was used as a circus, he demolished one of the walls and assaulted some half dozen people. Two years ago, while quartered for the Winter near Germantown, he got into one of his sulky moods, and when approached by his keeper he seized the unfortunate man with his trunk, tossed him into the air, and then placing the lifeless body under his feet, trampled it into a shapeless mass.

After overturning a few cages he was finally brought under subjection when briskly plied with thrusts from a harpoon or other sharp instrument. He is a dangerous animal, and it is about time he was killed.

THE ATTACK ON THE PRESIDENT

[From the Providence Journal.]

The efforts of every kind which have thus far been made to damage the Administration and to prevent the renomination of General Grant, are confessed to be entire failures. They have given rise to political discussions among the Republicans, which had been better omitted, and they have produced some needless alienations among those who would otherwise have been friends. This movement on the part of the anti-Grant Republicans has had one extraordinary characteristic. It has been marked by the same kind of hostility as if it had originated among Democrats. Confidence is withdrawn from the President and all merits and good qualities are denied to him as completely as could be done were these Republicans his political opponents and no longer members of the party in power. No harsher censures have been heaped upon him by any Democratic paper than may be found in the columns of the New York Tribune. No bitterer attacks have been made upon his Administration by any opposition members of Congress than have been so frequently hurled at it by such Senators as Mr. Sumner and Mr. Schurz. Why is all this necessary, and how can it be justified in accordance with party allegiance? They may prefer another candidate for the coming election, but why attempt to defame the President, to disparage the Republican party and to injure the interests and peril the foreign relations of the country?

The course which has been pursued and is still pursued by these disaffected Republicans, is, to say the least, both extraordinary and reckless. They say they prefer another candidate, but one might believe that they also prefer another party, for they are doing all in their power to dishonor the record and to injure the good name of the party to which they profess to belong. They seem to be utterly regardless of the political and even of the national consequences of the course which they are pursuing. If they were bent solely on driving the Republicans from power, they could scarcely devise more effectual means than those which they are now employing. The question of the approaching nomination is still an open question, and is to be discussed like any other question. Whoever may be nominated by the convention will, of course, be the candidate of the party. But this defamation of General Grant, this persistent attempt to disparage his Administration, to charge it with every sort of malfeasance and corruption, and even to embarrass it in managing the foreign relations of the country, which are now unusually delicate, is something more than discussion. It is vituperation; it is war, and it can only serve to render future harmony impossible. And what certain Republican presses and certain Republican politicians have said and done, it is no longer possible for them, without the greatest inconsistency, quietly and cheerfully to acquiesce in the nomination which will probably be made by the next Presidential Convention.

That the two Houses of Congress should waste the session in this way, and especially that the Senate should set the bad example of holding mere political discussions for popular effect is, we believe, very generally regretted throughout the country. It would be far better for all public interests, and far more acceptable to the public, if they would pass the bills and transact the business that may be necessary and then close the session. The day has gone by when public opinion in the United States can be controlled or even very largely shaped by what is said in Congress. Imputations are easily cast, charges are cheap material for a speech, but they produce little effect even in the halls where they are uttered, and still less effect among the people of the country.

FREE LOVE AND MURDER.

The Poisoning of Joseph Fowler of Manhassett, L. I.

[From the New York Sun, February 23.]

On the 11th day of November last, Joseph Fowler, residing at Manhassett, L. I., died after an illness of a few days. The physician who attended him in his last hours gave a certificate that death resulted from typhoid fever. During Fowler's illness he complained greatly of cramps and a burning sensation in his stomach, and on the evening of his death his wife, Hannah Ann, prepared an onion syrup for him, the first dose of which his mother gave him. Immediately after taking the syrup he complained greatly of thirst and drank much water. His wife gave him another dose and then started for Hempstead village, in company with a brother her of husband, named George, with whom it is alleged she had for some time previous carried on a criminal intimacy.

Some two weeks after Fowler's death, rumors that he had been poisoned coming to the ears of Coroner Hicks, that official had the body disinterred, and the deceased man's stomach was taken out by Dr. Frost, of Hempstead, for analysis; but nothing was then done, and the stomach remained for some two weeks in Dr. Frost's possession. A few days after the Coroner's jury were again called together and further evidence taken, but the Coroner still not wishing to incur the responsibility or expense of the analysis, laid the matter before the Board of Supervisors, and they directed Dr. John C. Draper, of New York City, to make the analysis, engaging to pay him $250 if his investigation resulted in no poisons being found, and $500 if otherwise.

Fowler's body was then again exhumed, and the lungs and liver taken out, and, with the stomach, given to Dr. Draper. A day or two ago he made his report to the Coroner, and on Tuesday the jury were again called together, and the investigation was continued. The report of Dr. Draper was read, and in it he stated that he had found arsenic in the stomach in sufficient quantities to cause death. Dr. Frost testified to the remarkable state of preservation in which the body was when exhumed, which he thought went to show that Fowler had not died from natural causes.

Mary Jane Fowler, the mother of the deceased man, testified at the last examination as well as at the first one, and her evidence on the latter occasion was in direct contradiction to her previous testimony, evidently with the intention of exculpating her son George. On the first examination she swore that she attended Joseph during his illness, and that his wife only gave him medicine once or twice. Yesterday she testified that his wife attended him all the time. Harvey Fowler, a brother of Joseph, testified to frequent quarreling between Joseph and his wife, and also that she refused to have the body exhumed. George Fowler was examined, and contradicted himself in several particulars. The jury, after a brief deliberation, returned the verdict—"That Joseph Fowler came to his death by arsenic poison, administered to him feloniously by his wife, Hannah Ann Fowler, with malice aforethought, and that George Fowler was an accessory before the fact."

The prisoners waived an examination, and were committed to the County Jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

THE NEWS.

An accident on an express train from Buffalo to Rochester resulted in the injury of several persons, without any one being killed or mortally wounded.

The Secretary of War and Major Bennett, of the Ordnance Department, have been examined relative to the sales of arms to the French Government. It appears that by law these officers were authorized to sell certain arms that would never be wanted by the United States—arms which were denominated as "unsuitable"—and no one knew who purchased them. Baron Gerolt, the Prussian Minister, made inquiry into one sale, and concluded that he didn't want any. That is about all there is of the investigation, so far.

In the Hall trial in New York an immense sensation has been caused by the appearance of Andrew J. Garvy, "the plasterer," as a witness for the prosecution. It is understood that he has turned State's evidence, and it is reported that Tweed, Sweeny, Connolly and others indicted for frauds will leave the city.

A block of buildings in New York city and a woolen mill in Rhode Island, have been consumed by fire.

A sister of Mrs. Woodhull has appeared on the rostrum at the Cooper Institute, N. Y., to combat her doctrines. She thinks her sister is insane and that Theodore Tilton is a liar.

The recall of Senor Roberts, Minister from Spain, is understood to be unfriendly to our Government, and it is said that Admiral Polo, his successor, will proceed to make war as soon as occasion serves.

A storm prevailed throughout the greatest portion of California yesterday. It is fair to presume that we will catch the tail end of it.

"THE MARTYRED SOUTH."

The San Francisco Examiner, by comparing certain census returns of 1860 with those of 1870, comes to the conclusion that the "South has been martyred" by the Republican party. It takes the subjoined figures, representing the assessed value of property in four of the Southern and four of the Northern States, respectively, in 1860 and 1870:

ASSESSED VALUATION.

States.	1860.	1870.
Georgia	$618,239,557	$202,503,557
Mississippi	509,472,912	154,635,527
South Carolina	489,319,128	174,409,491
Louisiana	435,787,264	250,588,570
Totals	$2,052,811,861	$782,137,145

The following is a similar exhibit of four Northern States:

ASSESSED VALUATION.

States.	1860.	1870.
New Jersey	$296,682,492	$634,868,971
New York	1,390,464,638	1,949,070,379
Massachusetts	777,157,816	1,341,169,403
Pennsylvania	719,253,335	1,171,557,009
Totals	$3,183,558,281	$5,085,665,762

The Examiner, with much less good sense than we are disposed to attribute to it, assumes that the depreciation of the assessed value of property in the four Southern States referred to is due to carpet-baggers, and the Republican party is of course responsible for it. In 1860 the several Southern States named possessed slaves as follows:

Georgia	462,198
Mississippi	436,631
South Carolina	402,416
Louisiana	331,726
Total	1,632,961

Estimating these slaves at an average value of $400 each, and we have a loss of $653,184,400 by their emancipation. The sum of $617,490,316 remains to be accounted for by the ravages of the war, the withdrawal of hundreds of thousands of strong arms from the industries of the States named during the four years of the rebellion, and the slothfulness of the Southern people since the war. Carpet-baggers have had little or nothing to do with this depreciation in the value of property in the Southern States. It is due altogether to the expenses of the rebellion, the ravages of the rebellion, and the emancipation of slaves resulting from the rebellion. In short, it is due to the Southern people themselves, and they must stand it.

A RELIGIOUS WRANGLE IN ENGLAND.

The Nonconformists of England, embracing the various Protestant denominations outside of the Established Church, have lately held a conference at Manchester to devise measures for securing modifications of the Education bill of 1870. This bill allowed the endowment of denominational schools; and as the Episcopalians and the Roman Catholics had for a long time been very active in organizing such institutions, while the Dissenters had very few, the effect of the law was to extend national support to a great number of schools under the control of these two churches, while the Dissenters received very little benefit from the education fund. This condition of affairs is not pleasing to the Nonconformists of Great Britain, who form a large, wealthy and influential party, and they now insist that education in the national schools shall be not merely unsectarian, but wholly secular. The position taken at the Manchester Conference was that the State should furnish schools, and that education should be compulsory; but that no State aid should be afforded to any school in which religious instruction is given. The Nonconformists of England formerly insisted as strenuously upon the reading of the Bible in all schools as the members of the same denominations in this country now urge the same policy; but since they find that unless national education is completely secularized the Episcopalians and the Catholics will have an advantage over them, they have abandoned their position on the Bible question, and now are fighting for a school system in which religious instruction of any kind shall be strictly prohibited.

PURCHASING CONFEDERATE PAPER.

On the strength of the excitement lately occasioned throughout the South by the announcement that rebel cotton bonds and "shinplasters" might soon have an increased marketable value, an enterprising shoemaker at Nashville, Tenn., caused an advertisement to be inserted in the Banner to the effect that he was prepared to give seventy-five cents "in the dol'ar" for old, and fifty cents for new, issue of Confederate money. The offer proved so tempting that the street in front of his store was crowded to excess on the following morning. Old men and old women from every part of the surrounding country were on hand with carpet bags and valises, containing paper representing thousands of dollars. The first man who entered the store had a parcel of some $200,000, and his utter astonishment may be better imagined than described when the audacious Crispen drew the pile toward him, and paid over to the owner one-half the amount in notes of precisely the same value and issue. For the reason that few men like to allow themselves to remain the only victims of such a huge joke, the fun was continued for several days, much to the amusement of those who had been in the secret from the first, and to the disgust of certain sharp ones who had been so far misled as to have attempted a "corner" in the market.

A DICTIONARY WRANGLE.

A correspondence between Mr. A. S. Solomons, of Washington, and the publishers of Webster's and Worcester's Dictionaries is published in the Jewish Messenger. Mr. Solomons protested against the use of the word Jew as a verb, with the definition "to cheat or defraud; to swindle," appended; and requested that the objectionable definition should be omitted from both dictionaries in future editions. To this request the publishers of Webster's Dictionary suggested that if the words "used opprobriously" should be added to the definition the offense would be removed, but subsequently consented to strike out the word entirely. The publishers of Worcester wrote that they had only an advisory power over the text of that dictionary, which is under the control of the author's surviving brothers. At the same time they take occasion to remark that the fundamental principle upon which Worcester's quarto was made was to give the orthography, pronunciation and meaning of every word in the English language used by any writer of notoriety; but that, nevertheless, if the Worcester brothers consent, they are willing to omit the obnoxious word, or to condemn it, although it has the highest authority, that of Shakspeare, for its origin in our language. Afterward, the same publishers notified Mr. Solomons that they had made an alteration which they hoped would prove satisfactory. The word and definition in the amended form appeared thus: "Jew, v. a. To cheat. [A low and cant term.]" To this Mr. Solomons still objected, and offered a substitute, which, if adopted, he thought would to some extent remedy the difficulty. The substitute was this: "Jew, v. a. To cheapen. [A low term now obsolete.]" As to the latest development of the matter, the New York Sun says: "The publishers of Worcester have not signified their intention of adopting Mr. Solomons' emendation; but in the last letter of the published correspondence they say that no new edition of their dictionary shall go to press until some satisfactory change has been made, and that they shall probably omit the word altogether."

JACK SHEPPARD IN SALT LAKE.

Tom Fitch is creating a tumult in Salt Lake. He first appeared as a friend of the Mormons, in which capacity he was idolized by the Church authorities, offered an Eldership in the Church, and as many wives as he was able to support. On the assembling of the Constitutional Convention, composed principally of Mormons, one of the first acts of Mr. Fitch was to make an eight hours' speech, concluding with a demand that polygamy be abolished as a barbarism discountenanced by forty millions of people in the United States. On the position of Mr. Fitch, the Salt Lake Tribune of the 5th instant says:

> The annals of history have often been blurred and disgraced by the record of crime, but the most impious act of which we have any knowledge is that recently committed by Tom Fitch. The facts are briefly as follows: "God" intrusted His earthly kingdom and authority to Embassador Brigham Young, who, while in the act of permanently establishing it, was impiously arrested by a cowering villain, known in this country by the name of "Uncle Sam," and held to answer to the charge of murder and other grave crimes. While in this helpless condition, Tom Fitch, through his well-known subtlety, succeeded in wiggling himself into the good graces of Cardinal Cannon, who was left in charge of the whole stock in trade by Mr. Young during his absence. Now, it must be remembered that Tom is a great psychologist, and, as a matter of course, the Cardinal was soon brought unconsciously under his control. While in this mesmeric state, Tom got him to divulge all the keys, signs and tokens, and thereby obtained unlawful possession of the kingdom, which he is now about to throw upon the Washington market as an exchange for an earthly State government. It is authoritatively stated, however, that Cannon, as a last resort, has offered to become a confederate for the consideration of being allowed to retain the office of First Cardinal under the new regime. Talk about Jack Sheppard, indeed! Who ever dreamed of a man so daring as to cage the "lion," steal the kingdom, and sell it for the rag-end of an obnoxious Republic?

As already announced, the Republican State Convention of Kansas has chosen a delegation to the Philadelphia National Convention, with instructions "to vote for the patriotic President and citizen soldier, U. S. Grant, whose administration has brought us a degree of prosperity at home and respect and dignity abroad which it would be suicidal to interrupt or interfere with till time has been given to complete the work so well begun and so auspiciously prosecuted to the present time!" Commenting upon this, the New York Herald says: "The prospect is now that the renomination of General Grant will be as easy and emphatic as was the renomination of Abraham Lincoln in 1864, and on the same ground, that time must be given him in our home and foreign affairs to 'complete the work so well begun.'"

The St. Louis Democrat desires to ask the honorable Senator from Missouri (Mr. Schurz) a question: Did he ever write a letter to a gentleman by the name of Schwartz, of New York, promising that after he had "laid out" the Administration in the General Order business, he would turn round and give him—Schwartz, as aforesaid—all the profits and emoluments of that business?

PEN AND SCISSORS.

One of the most curious and, at the same time, disgraceful suits ever brought in a California Court, says the San Francisco Call of March 7, was settled in the Twelfth District Court yesterday morning. The title of the case was John D. Swift vs. Debora Swift. Plaintiff is the son of defendant, and claimed $20,000 damages of her for an alleged assault and battery. According to the allegations, the circumstances out of which the suit arose were as follows: The parties, who are American by birth, and of respectable social position, reside on farms about half a mile apart, in San Mateo county. Mrs. Swift, who is about sixty years of age, had a wagon at her place, which her son took without her permission, and then refused to return it. She went after it with a hired man and a pair of horses, but her son drove the hired man away, and used profane and indecent language to his mother. She expostulated with him at first, but at last told him that rather than he should have the wagon in that way, she would saw off the tongue, and seized a saw for that purpose. He then threw her down upon a pile of redwood logs, with jagged edges, breaking one of her fingers and bruising various parts of her person. At this moment, and in self-defense, as the sworn answer states, Mrs. Swift struck her son with a stick of wood and bruised his arm. This constituted the injury, to recover damages for which the action was commenced. E. A. Lawrence for plaintiff; Henry E. Highton for defendant. The case was dismissed at plaintiff's cost.

Last night, at about 11:30 o'clock, says the Sacramento Reporter of March 7, a young German woman stopping at the Mechanics' Hotel was returning from a visit to some friends. She states that she was accosted by a man, who requested her to go with him. Upon her refusing to comply, he snatched her bonnet and attempted to take her shawl. Officer Parks soon appeared on the scene, and was enabled to get enough of her story, although she speaks little or no English, to go into the lumber yard at the corner of Front and M streets, where he found a man who gives his name as John Reed, whom she identified as the man who accosted her. Parks conveyed him to the Station-house and took the girl to her hotel, after which he proceeded to scour the lumber yard, where he succeeded in finding the bonnet. The thanks of the young lady are due Parks for his timely assistance and the promptitude with which he proceeded to restore her "prized bonnet."

At about 11 o'clock on Thursday morning last, says the Pioche Record of March 3, Jas. Kurtz went into Clancey & O'Rourke's saloon to look for a party, and not finding him, turned to go out, when he was asked to take a drink by a man named Charley, formerly a cook for Mrs. Hyde. Charley was intoxicated, and Kurtz asking to be excused from drinking passed out and stood on the sidewalk with his back to the door. Charley came out with a pistol in his hand and some one called to Kurtz to look out, when he turned, and as he did so Charley fired, the ball passing through Kurtz's left-hand coat pocket, tearing a large hole in a book he usually carried, and grazed his side in the region of the heart. It was a close call, and only for the act of turning Kurtz would have received a fatal wound in the back. Charley was immediately arrested. As no hard words had passed previous to the shooting, the supposition is that "benzine" was the cause of the act.

On Sunday afternoon, says the Chico (Cal.) Review of March 5, news came to town that John Stoock, a ranchman, living eight or nine miles above town, had committed suicide by hanging. It appears that he was around as usual on Sunday morning, and his wife paid no particular attention to his absence from the house until about noon, when she went to the door to call him to dinner, thinking he was just outside. Having waited some little time, and he not making his appearance, she went out to seek for him. She proceeded to the barn, and there, to her consternation, she found him hanging to a beam, stiff dead. It appears that some three or four years since the deceased received a severe wound on the head, which has affected his mind, and caused him to be very quarrelsome with his family, occasioning frequent jars.

A few days since, says the Marysville Appeal of March 7, Lieutenant Parks, who resides near Sweet Vengeance, suspected that some wild animal was marauding on his flock. Four lambs were killed in rapid succession, and then Mr. Parks set himself to work to destroy the slayer of his flock. In searching around he discovered one of the lambs, which the beast was unable to eat, but had buried. Putting some strychnine in the carcass, he covered it again, and leaving awaited results. Two days afterwards he visited the place and was delighted to find a huge catamount stretched out dead within ten feet of the remains of the lamb. His flock has been undisturbed since.

Last evening, says the Stockton Independent of March 7, a man named Jack was stabbed in the neck with a pocket-knife in the hands of James Satterlee, severing the occipital branch of the carotid artery. The flow of blood was stopped by Drs. Browne and Stockton, who were in attendance soon after the cutting took place. The particulars of the trouble which led to the cutting we could not ascertain. James Satterlee was arrested by Sheriff Cunningham and taken to jail, but was subsequently released from custody by order of Justice Brown, who fixed his bail at $250. The condition of the wounded man is not considered dangerous.

The case of The State vs. Daniel Holland et als., members of the Miners' Union charged with riot, came up before Judge Logan this morning, says the Reese River Reveille of March 5, and was, upon motion of the District Attorney, dismissed.

Sam. T. Curtis, well known as a mining superintendent on the Comstock, has arrived in Pioche and taken charge of the Pioche West Extension Mining Company.

The people of Nevada and Grass Valley, Cal., are now talking of building a horse-car railroad from those towns to Colfax.

A medicine that cures is a real public blessing AYER'S SARSAPARILLA makes positive cure of a series of complaints, which are always afflicting and too often fatal. DIAMOND DRILL.—Our item of yesterday morning, put out as a feeler in regard to the diamond drill, brings us the information that a diamond drill is now here and will soon be at work in one of the shafts of the Sutro Tunnel. The using of the diamond drill in a shaft is a novel and interesting experiment. In using the drill in a shaft it will only be necessary to hoist the drill to a recess, where it will be out of the way, when a blast is to be fired. Those who are about to try the experiment are confident it will succeed. We are also informed that a percussion drill, to be worked by a compressed air engine, has been ordered in the East and is now on the way to this State, which is to be set up in the Yellow Jacket mine. We are glad to know that these drills are soon to be tested in this vicinity.

BOOKS FOR THE SCHOOL LIBRARY.—Mr. Hatch, of Hatch Brothers, and Jas. Kelly, the well-known liquor dealer, yesterday had their wagons out collecting books for the Public School Library. Beany Irwin was out with Kelly's wagon and did good service at collecting books. Altogether, nearly 300 valuable volumes were obtained. Besides the books brought in by the wagons, many small lots of books were sent in by persons living out of the track followed by the collectors. Thus, before a cent of coin has been expended, there has been collected a larger library than the one that was consumed by the fire. When to this comes to be added the books which can be purchased with the $1,000 in coin now on hand, the library will be one that our citizens may be proud of.

THE WEEKLY ENTERPRISE.—The WEEKLY ENTERPRISE, in wrappers, stamped and ready for mailing, can be had to-day at the ENTERPRISE counting room, at Boegle's book store, at Atchison's Postoffice Book Store, Burrall's book store and at Chubbuck's book store, Gold Hill. It contains all the local and mining news of the week, all the Pacific coast news, editorials on various live subjects, choice poetry, and miscellaneous literary articles. It contains eight pages of reading matter and no advertisements. It is just the paper to send to friends at a distance.

AN IMPROVEMENT.—Woodruff & Ennor have been overhauling their stage office at Wells, Fargo & Co.'s, and making some improvements which will add much to its convenience. A counter replaces the old peephole through which business was formerly transacted, and parties who are conversing together now have a chance to see each other without bringing their noses in contact.

LIME BURNING.—Mr. George Simpson, who has had much experience in the business, will to-day begin the construction of three large lime kilns near the St. John's mine, just north of the Sutro Tunnel. It is said that excellent limestone can be procured at that point. There is always a brisk demand in this city for good lime.

JUDGE YOUNG'S COURT.—The following criminal cases were disposed of in this Court yesterday: Pup Donahue, arrested by officer Enders for disturbing the peace; forfeited $30 bail. Dan O'Connell, arrested by officer Cummings for violating a city ordinance; fined $10. I. Cook, arrested by Chief Downey for the same offense; fined $10.

OPEN TO INSPECTION.—We learn that a number of persons were yesterday permitted to enter and examine the Sierra Nevada mine. All speak well of the new development, and we also saw some fine looking specimens brought from it. Steps are now being taken for opening out upon the ore body in good shape.

THE WEATHER.—The weather yesterday was windy, raw and disagreeable. About noon it sprinkled rain for an hour or two, but it hardly amounted to a Scotch mist when at its best. We will probably have no really good weather until we first have had a good square rain storm or snow squall.

MATINEE.—A grand matinee will be given at the Opera House this afternoon, in order that the ladies and children may have an opportunity of seeing the new troupe. A fine bill will be presented on the occasion, and the house will doubtless be crowded, should the day prove fine.

OPHIR GRADE.—Teaming over the Ophir Grade from Washoe Valley and Steamboat Springs has commenced and the road is in good condition. This route is much better and shorter than the one which has been traveled of late by the teamsters.

THE howling winds and leaden-hued clouds last night indicated a storm and we will, perhaps, have a dash of rain or snow to-day. Until we have a storm of some kind there seems to be but little chance of our getting fair weather.

DISAPPEARING.—The snow is gradually disappearing from the hills surrounding the city. It is melting off so slowly that the water produced is all being absorbed by the earth, which will be of great benefit to the country.

SPARRING EXHIBITION.—A grand sparring exhibition will be given at Piper's Opera House on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Dwyer is said to be a fine sparrer, and there will doubtless be a grand turn out of the "fancy."

ARIZONA MINE.—The Arizona Mining Company, American Flat, have opened out their old tunnel and are now working upward from it to prospect their ground. They expect soon to find paying ore.

THERE are messages at the Western Union Telegraph office for F. Veerkamp and Eva Clayton.

IN spite of the cloudy weather the mud is gradually disappearing from our streets.

PIPER'S OPERA HOUSE.—The new minstrel troupe drew a fine house last night on the occasion of their second appearance, and the performance was quite as satisfactory as that given the previous night. The singing in the first part was very fine, the chorus being notably good. The walk-around, with which the first part concludes, is given with much vim, and gives Cogill and Cooper a good opportunity for doing some fine dancing. The singing of the Stanleys is very fine, and never fails to be rewarded by a round of hearty applause. Mlle. Lizzie has a most powerful voice and is quite a favorite, her songs generally having in them a spice of fun. The "Dutch Leon," by Carlora, is a good thing well done, and Frank Sparrow is very effective in his Ethiopian specialties. Charley Vincent has improved wonderfully since he was last in this city, and is good in all he undertakes; and Miss Dean, who is at the head of the troupe, is a favorite in all her specialties. The entertainment concluded with the laughable sketch entitled "Scenes in a Divorce Court." A grand matinee will be given this afternoon, on which occasion the price of admission will be fifty cents for adults and twenty-five cents for children.

MANY heavy teams are now employed in hauling freight from Steamboat Springs to this city. The roads are not in first-rate condition, yet the "prairie schooners" manage to bring in huge loads of freight.

QUIET.—Although the town is at present full of people, it is very quiet and orderly. The policemen have easy times and our Justices and men of law, have time in which to recruit their energies.

RELIGIOUS SERVICE IN DAYTON.—Bishop Whitaker will hold divine service in the Methodist Church, Dayton, to-morrow (Sunday) evening at half-past 7 o'clock. All are cordially invited.

WE understand that the Masonic party given last night at National Guard Hall, for the benefit of the Widow and Orphan Fund of the Order, was well attended.

NEW WINES.—At Daley's saloon will be found the new Mountain Vineyard and Cucomongo wines. Wine drinkers are invited to try these new brands.

TRAVEL.—Travel continues lively between this place and Steamboat, the arrivals being on the average, about twice as numerous as the departures.

THE cars are running regularly between this city and Carson, and wood and lumber are coming in freely for all uses.

COUNTY JAIL.—There are at present eight prisoners confined in the County Jail, mostly for minor offenses.

STOCKS were rather weak yesterday, and what to "pitch into" next seems now to be the question with many.

NO BUSINESS in the criminal line was transacted in Judge Hill's Court yesterday afternoon.

SPRING vegetables are beginning to reach us from California.

THE District Court will be in session next Tuesday, March 12.

FINE CLOTHING.—Those who desire to rig themselves out in really fine and cheap clothing, will do well to call and inspect Barnert's fine stock, next door to the California Bank. He not only keeps the best of business suits of the latest and most fashionable styles, but also dress suits of the finest material and the best workmanship. His stock of underclothing is unsurpassed, and white shirts of the best make are kept constantly on hand, as well as all kinds of furnishing goods. A fine rig from top to toe can be had at an astonishingly low price, with a trunk or carpet-bag in which to stow it away. His store is one of the neatest in town, and is stocked with none but the very best goods.

GET YOUR WATCHES REGULATED.—Mr. W. T. Eaves, the well-known jeweler, gives notice in another column that persons who have lately had their watches repaired or cleaned at his establishment will please bring them back in case they do not run well, as he now has a competent workman who will put them in perfect order. This looks like a fair offer.

THE Carson Brewery, corner of C and Union streets, is being thoroughly remodeled and overhauled for the Spring campaign.

THE CONDITION OF KENTUCKY.—In the course of a long editorial, the Louisville Courier-Journal makes the following statements:

There is scarcely a State in the Union in which land does not advance in value faster than it has done of late years in Kentucky. In the last four years there has been a positive depreciation in the value of land in thirty-seven counties of this State. In fifty-six counties the advance in the value of lands during the last four years was less than a dollar per acre. In only five counties (Carroll, Clark, Hickman, Kenton and Shelby) was the average advance in the value of lands during the last four years between two and three dollars an acre. In one county (Mason) there was in the last four years an advance of three dollars and seventy cents per acre, and in only one single county was there in the four years just passed an advance of over five dollars per acre in the value of lands. That one county was Warren, in which the lands since 1868 advanced five dollars and seventy cents per acre. A comparison of these rates of advance with those of counties in Illinois, Kansas, Missouri or Wisconsin, must impress our taxpayers with the necessity of keeping pace with other States in the march of improvement.

THE following curious incident in the life of the present Emperor of Russia is related in a recently published biography. One day the late Emperor Nicholas, hearing a great noise in the room in the Winter Palace, where his children were playing, went in to see what was the matter. He found Constantine holding down his brother Alexander by both knees, and pulling with all his strength at the knot of a cravat with which he had twisted round Alexander's throat. Alexander, who was nearly throttled, was begging for mercy, and his father came just in time to save him. On being asked the meaning of the strange scene, Constantine explained to his father that they were re-enacting a well-known event in Russian history—the assassination of the Emperor Paul I. Constantine was put under arrest for having attempted to strangle the Czarowitch, and Alexander was sent to prison because he could not for mercy.

THE water furnished the different companies of London has recently been the subject of examination. A comparison was made with a sample of London sewage, which had been allowed to soak through five feet of earth, and the sewage was found to contain a smaller portion of injurious elements than the drinking water. A comparison was also made with samples of the water taken from fifty condemned shallow wells, and the examination showed that the water of only ten of the condemned wells contained a larger proportion of organic impurities than that daily furnished for use by three of the principal companies. Only two companies supply nearly pure water. It is remarked as a singular fact that the companies notorious for supplying the worst water have the largest number of consumers.

THERE is a Methodist minister in Canada named Scott, eloquent, witty and genial. There was a Methodist minister in Canada named Steer—Rev. William Steer. It is not flattering to Mr. Steer to say that he was the worst speaker that ever attained to "thirteenthly." It was during a conference meeting that several ministers billeted in one house were discussing Mr. Steer's merits and eccentricities. Mr. Scott lay luxuriously on a sofa during the debate. Finally one of the disputants asked him: "Brother Scott, what do you think about Brother Steer's preaching?" "Think?" replied Brother Scott, without removing his clasped hands from under his head; "why, I think that Steer will never become a Knox."

THE wife of a Louisville horse car driver applied to him for money the other day, as he was manipulating the brake and guiding his high-mettled steeds along the shining rails. He refused to disburse, when the angry woman gave vent to her disappointment by breaking the car windows, which so grieved her husband that he swore out a warrant for her arrest. The morals of this story are too numerous to mention.

IT is rumored that the original manuscript of Don Quixote has been discovered in Spain.

READY-MAID bridal costumes are appropriately advertised in a New Jersey paper.

THE Richmond Enquirer is moved to compare Henry Ward Beecher to Marabeau.

A CINCINNATI ball was reinforced by three balls from a drunken reveler's pistol.

THIERS, in the recent acrimonious tax debate, confessed himself an impost-er.

IT is 200 years ago that tea was first introduced into the British Isles.

Some twelve or thirteen persons were injured, but not dangerously. One car caught fire while rolling over, but the flames were speedily extinguished with the snow. The passengers were brought back to the city and promptly cared for by officers of the road.

WASHINGTON, March 7.

The Senate Select Committee on the sale of arms, commenced an examination to-day. The first witness was Secretary Belknap, who said he did not know of any sale made in violation of the law of the 15th of October, 1870. Having received a telegram which gave him reason to believe that Remington was an agent of the French Government, he immediately gave orders that no more arms should be sold to him. He had never spoken to Remington, nor of the known until afterwards, that Richardson was his agent at subsequent sales. In reply to a question as to whether any precaution could have prevented the French from receiving these arms, he replied: "Not after they were sold." He presumed purchasers sold to whom they thought proper. Official orders, however, were given to the Ordnance Bureau not to sell to agents of the French or Prussian Governments. The War Department sold arms unsuitable for our service, being engaged in providing better ones. He only knew from newspapers and general rumor, that arms were sent to France. Whether they had previously been purchased from this Government or were manufactured by private firms, he had no means of knowing. He was asked whether Bernard Gerolt made complaint that arms had been sold to the French Government, and he replied that on the 15th of October, 1870, the Baron called to request that the sale of arms be postponed till the next week. The witness informed him that our Government would sell no arms either to agents of the French or Prussian Governments. Gerolt said they were not agents who desired to buy, but friends, when the witness said they would have time to put in their bids by next week. To this, Gerolt said they first wished to consult the Prussian Government. The sale, however, was not postponed beyond the next week. The witness was interrogated on other points heretofore noticed in the report of his testimony before the House Committee on Expenditures of the War Department. To-morrow the committee will examine General Dyer, Chief of Ordnance, at his house, he being unwell.

The House Committee on Expenditures in the War Department held a meeting this forenoon in the matter of sales of arms and ordnance stores, and examined at great length Major S. B. Bennett, of the Ordnance Department, who explained in detail the modus operandi of making the sales and accounting for the proceeds. He disclaimed all knowledge of purchases being made on behalf of either France or Prussia, but admitted that the war between those Powers stimulated the demand for arms in this country on speculation. He testified that the minimum quantity of arms to which the stores of the Government had been reduced during that year was about 750,000 stand of suitable arms and 450,000 of unsuitable arms. The term "unsuitable arms" is understood by the department as not necessarily unserviceable. There are 30,000 now in use. Some of these arms were sold during the years 1870-71. During the year there were sold five and a half millions of cartridges, but I don't know how many were made for that purpose. They were manufactured for $20 and sold for $32 per thousand. I think no cartridges were made that year and sold during the same year. I don't know of any other case than this in which cartridges were made to effect the sales of arms. Bids have been made contingent upon being supplied with cartridges and they have been furnished out of this store. The witness testified that the sale of 55,000 Springfield arms to Remington & Co. was made by himself at private sale at $5 each. A few days before 20,000 of the same class were offered at the Springfield Armory and withdrawn because only $2 80 each was bid. No officer of the Ordnance or War Departments of the United States Government was interested directly or indirectly in any way in commissions or otherwise on sales of these arms, to his knowledge, nor had he any reason for believing such to be the case. He knew nothing about the parties to whom the arms were sold having any connection with a foreign Government. Dyer wrote the witness a letter from New York saying that arms of the model of 1868 should be issued and those of 1866 withdrawn, and directed him to consult with the Secretary of War as to the propriety of selling the latter and manufacturing cartridges for them, if necessary. The Secretary approved the plan and a sale was ordered and made in New York. My correspondence does not mention Richardson's name.

Senator Schurz was present by invitation at the Senate Special Committee and put numerous questions to Secretary Belknap regarding the sales of arms. The Secretary said the arms were sold or awarded to Remington before he was placed in possession of a telegram to Squires, which was the first intimation he had that Remington was an agent for the French Government. They were delivered to Remington subsequent to the date of the telegram. He did not now certainly know what name was signed to the telegram, although, according to his recollection, it was that of Remington. Schurz closely interrogated the Secretary about the dates of sales, but Belknap could not furnish the desired information at present, but said that the data was being prepared in the Department.

NEW YORK, March 7.

In the Hall trial this afternoon, a sensation was created by the appearance of Andrew J. Garvey, the plasterer, as a witness for the prosecution. He testified to the identity of the warrant paid him for work on the County Court-house. The payment was made by its deposit in the Broadway Bank, where he had further deposits exceeding $166,000. He received the warrant in the room of the Board of Supervisors from Woodward, Deputy Clerk to the Supervisors, to whom he presented the account a week previously. The prosecuting counsel asked the witness if the account was genuine and true in all its details. The defense objected, when the prosecuting counsel said he proposed to show by the witness that the bill, with the exception of about thirty-three per cent., was fraudulent. Argument followed until the adjournment of the Court.

Crowds were attracted to the vicinity of the Court by the announcement that they had got Garvey, and great excitement and interest was manifested. Many threats were made against Garvey, who is understood to have turned State's evidence.

The Assembly Judiciary Committee to-day commenced an investigation of the charges against Judge Barnard. The principal charge is that he conspired with Jim Fisk and others to obtain possession illegally of the Erie and Albany and Susquehanna Railroads. Field further testified that the fees paid him were very moderate, and that there was no reason to suppose that Barnard was interested in the result of the litigation.

A rumor was current yesterday that one of Tweed's bondsmen intended to surrender him.

Garvey's appearance as a witness in the Hall case creates a profound sensation. It has brought consternation to Hall and his counsel. Garvey's return is due to the negotiations of his wife several weeks ago with the Attorney General and Samuel J. Tilden, by which Garvey is promised immunity from prosecution on his turning State's evidence and returning some of his ill-gotten money. He has been in concealment at his residence about a month. It is alleged that Ingersoll will also turn informer. Few knew that Garvey would be a witness until his name was called. Hall's counsel say they don't think their case will be much affected by Garvey's testimony. Still there is a general trepidation among the entire Tammany Ring over the proceedings of yesterday, and every effort will be made by the friends of the Ring to have Garvey arrested on a new order, the old one having expired by limitation. His turning State's evidence so endangers the safety of Tweed, Connolly, Sweeny and the rest, that it is believed they will all flee the city.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 7.

Bills were presented for the erection of public buildings at St. Louis and Little Rock.

Wright gave notice that after the pending Appropriation bill was disposed of he would call up the Chicago Relief bill.

Chandler, from the Committee on Commerce, reported a resolution directing that the committee make a thorough inquiry into the subjects of emigration and the treatment of emigrants after their arrival in this country, and also into the questions of quarantine and health regulations at the chief ports of the United States.

The resolution was amended so as to extend an inquiry into the treatment of emigrants by railroad companies, and limiting the ports to be visited to New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, and passed.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the Legislative Appropriation bill; the bill having been reported yesterday from the Committee of the Whole. All the amendments made in committee were concurred in except those reserved to be voted on separately.

Ames, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported a bill to provide for the disposition of that portion of the military reservation at Fort Ripley, Minnesota, lying near the Mississippi River. Passed.

The consideration of the Legislative Appropriation bill was resumed.

The amendment authorizing the employment of forty additional clerks in the Land Office was tabled. The question then being on the amendment appropriating $50,000 to be expended by the President in putting in force the Civil Service Reform requisitions.

Carpenter moved to strike it out and substitute the following: "All laws or parts of laws under which the present Civil Service Reform Commission was appointed by the President of the United States are hereby repealed."

Trumbull moved to lay the substitute on the table. Carried—yeas, 40; nays, 29. The Republicans voting in the negative were Caldwell, Carpenter, Cameron, Chandler, Clayton, Hitchcock, Hamilton of Texas, Kellogg, Osborn, Logan, Pomeroy, Poole, West and Windom. The only Democrats voting in the negative were Blair, Cooper and Salisbury.

The question recurred on the original amendment, appropriating $50,000.

Sherman favored the amendment, although he was not confident that Civil Service Reform could be effected by the plan, but Congress being already committed to it, ought to make this appropriation so as to give it a fair trial. He expressed a hope that the operation of the scheme would be confined to Washington, New York, and some large cities where reform was most needed; because, if the President attempted to extend it over the whole country it would break down with its own weight.

Logan opposed the system as proposed by the Civil Service Commissioners as a humbug, and cited a case where a few days ago there was an examination in one Department where twenty-three persons competed for office, and one of the clerks in the Department told him before the examination the name of the man who would get the appointment.

In reply to a question by Edmunds as to what kind of a reform he wanted, Logan said he had not fully considered the matter, but if he had the power, whenever a man performed his duties well, he would let him alone, and whenever he did not he would turn him out. He would also make the term of office of public officers coextensive with that of the President, unless in case of misconduct. Further, if the officer performed his duty in such a way as to make his neighbors fully believe he was dishonest, he would turn him out.

Edmunds thought it remarkable that Congress having deliberately passed a law authorizing the President to make this experiment in Civil Service Reform, should now threaten to abandon the effort and repeal the law just as soon as an attempt was made to put it into execution. He then proceeded in an ironical view to represent how great a humbug and encroachment on the rights of the people the scheme was which proposed to take from Senators the power to place their party friends in office and make appointments depend on merit and fitness.

Without reaching a vote the Senate adjourned.

House.

Hooper, from the Banking Committee, reported back adversely Senate bill for the redemption of the temporary three per cent. certificates at the rate of three millions a month, and moved to lay it on the table.

After discussion the bill was tabled by a large majority.

The House then proceeded to vote on amendments to the Deficiency Appropriation bill.

Blair of Michigan asked leave to offer a preamble setting forth that charges have appeared in certain newspapers calculated to affect injuriously the reputation of the Secretary of the Navy and to cast doubts upon the integrity of his administration, and a resolution providing for the appointment of a Select Committee of five to investigate the irregularities charged and inquire generally into the administration of the affairs of the Navy Department during the incumbency of the present Secretary.

Sargent stated, in behalf and at the request of the Secretary, that he desired an investigation and courted it to the fullest extent.

Banks opposed an investigation based on charges in newspapers, and Bingham objected to its reception, and therefore it was not received.

After disposing of all the amendments to the Deficiency bill and agreeing to the one offered by Dawes for the payment of a full day's wages to laborers and mechanics in the Navy Yards, etc., who had worked only eight hours, the bill was passed.

The House took up the bill granting to the Central Pacific Railroad Company the use of one-half of the Island of Yerba Buena in the bay of San Francisco.

Arguments in favor of the bill were made by Farnsworth, Niblack and Houghton, and it then went over until Tuesday next.

Ketchum, Chairman of the Committee on Public Lands, reported back Senate bill extending the time for the completion of the St. Croix and Lake Superior Railroad, and it was made the special order for Thursday next, when the House adjourned.

CIRCE.

You hold my heart in your slender hands,
In your cold, your cruel, careless hands.
In your beautiful hands fanned by a breath,
Like the breath of a rose, it is dying its death.

In your beautiful hands with their glitter of rings,
Each ring a trophy that scornfully sings
Of other hearts that have lain like mine
On your cruelly beautiful, pitiless shrine;

Of other hearts that have gone to their death,
Swooned to sleep by that sweet, sweet breath,
That breath of the rose that comes and goes
As the smiling, beautiful lips unclose.

When night after night down dizzying dances
They follow and follow your dazzling glances,
While round and round by the music whirled,
As I'd follow and follow you over the world.

Then hold me fast in your slender hands,
In your cruelly beautiful, pitiless hands;
Let me forever be dying my death,
Swooned to death by that sweet, sweet breath;

Let me forever be whirling there,
Lost in a trance divinely fair;
Let me forever be stricken and slain,
And dying with this delicate pain!

You jist bury them 'ere clothes about a foot in the sand, and in a week they'll smell as sweet as mine." Our dandy has not since been visible to the naked eye.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

THE WEEKLY ENTERPISE is compiled with special reference to its circulation in the East. The "Pen and Scissors" columns of the Daily—which embrace a complete record of events in the Pacific States and Territories—are collected in the Weekly under the head of "Pacific Coast News," constituting the amplest summary of domestic intelligence published by any journal on the Coast.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE WEEKLY ENTERPRISE contains an entire page of the principal Local Items appearing in the Daily, carefully selected and arranged under their respective dates, and forming a complete weekly review of local topics and events.

MINING AND MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

THE WEEKLY ENTERPRISE also contains the latest Review of the Mining Share Market, the latest Stock Quotations, a full record of Births, Marriages and Deaths, the Virginia Letter List, San Francisco, Overland and Domestic Telegraphic Dispatches, Editorials, a careful compilation of Detailed Eastern News, besides choice selections of Poetry and Miscellany.

SEND IT HOME.

Persons who desire to send some token of remembrance to distant friends, or who wish to keep them posted in regard to our local nd Pacific Coast matters, should have the WEEKLY ENTERPRISE mailed to them regularly. The cost is inconsiderable, while it obviates the necessity of frequent correspondence and furnishes more information concerning general local affairs than could be given by the most unremitting and voluminous letter-writing.

Those who are anxious to disseminate correct information regarding the resources, products and prospects of Nevada and the adjoining States and Territories, should send abroad the WEEKLY ENTELPRISE, as its columns present a complete reflex of the industrial, social and political condition of the Pacific Coast.

☞ Call and examine specimen copies at the Publication Office of the Daily and Weekly Territorial Enterprise, No. 24 South C street, Virginia.

SWEET'S
CHEMICAL FLUID,
For CLEANSING THE SCALES FROM BOILERS AND TUBES.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

HAVING TRIED THE CHEMICAL FLUID MANUFACTURED AND SOLD BY A. CURRY, IN ONE OF THE LOCOMOTIVES OF THE VIRGINIA AND TRUCKEE RAILROAD COMPANY, I do hereby certify that it does the work of removing the scales most effectually, and is the best article I have ever tried. I have also made a thorough test in regard to its injuring iron, brass, or other metals. At the request of Mr. Curry, I took five gallons of the Fluid, put it in a small boiler, into which I put a turned bolt with nut and thread-cut, also a piece of brass, boiling the whole for three weeks, night and day. After boiling away all the Fluid, I washed the articles and found all sound, and as good as when put into the Fluid. I am satisfied that it will not injure Boilers or Tubes, and most cheerfully recommend it to all persons using Steam Boilers, for cleaning them and preventing scales. J. W. BOWKER, M. M.,
V. and T. R. R.

I hereby appoint
